Clubs
Peace Home Demonstration Club met January 4 at the home of Mrs. Herman Hurd with five members. Report on the Christmas Blackwood, Home Demonstration Agent, presented.

The meeting was called to order by the new president, Mrs. Paul Day. Roll call was answered by telling "What I plan to do about my yard this year." Each member present planned some improvement for the coming year. Minutes were omitted as the new secretary did not have the minutes of our last meeting in the new book. Report was made about the plaque for New Hope church. We hope to have it completed by our next meeting.

The club will hold its February meeting at the home of Mrs. Royce Collier. The demonstration will be on bottoming chairs with sacks. Part of the leaders were appointed as follows: Garden and Orchard, Mrs. Royce Collier; poultry, Mrs. Paul Day; clothing, Mrs. Joe Fincher; Child Development, Mrs. Herman Hurd; Home Industry, Mrs. Herman Hurd; Home Grounds, Mrs. R. E. Long; and Health, Mrs. Joe Fincher.

Mrs. Blackwood gave a demonstration on weaving baskets. Each member present was supposed to have her basket completed and bring it with her to our February meeting. Material for the baskets was purchased by the club through Mrs. Blackwood.

The meeting adjourned and light refreshments were served by the hostess.

Guernsey 4-H Club met Tuesday, January 4, at Guernsey High School. Hazel Daugherty, president, presided. Beatrice N. O'Connell, song captain, led the singing of a club song. The boys grafted and budded fruit trees and practiced other types of vegetative propagation in a demonstration led by Byron Huddleston, Assistant County Agent.

Cotton Maid Begins Long Fashion Tour
Washington, Jan. 7. (AP)—Cotton crop control for 1950 will be considered today at the first of a series of meetings by an unofficial house subcommittee.

Two agriculture department officials will be the first witnesses. They are D. Walker, chairman of the cotton control committee, and E. D. White, who will represent the agriculture department and the economic cooperation administration.

Rep. Pace (D-Ga.) is chairman of the subcommittee. He said among the questions to be decided will be whether acreage planted in cotton this year will be included in figuring next year's allotment if acreage limitations are imposed. He said it is necessary to know quickly the prospect of average control for next year before the entire cotton marketing quota laws must be rewritten, he said.

DOROTHY DIX

Office Girls Home-Wreckers?

Dear Miss Dix: Do you consider the fact that every business house is filled with young and attractive women, who work side by side with married men, the greatest menace that the home has ever had, and that every wife's most dangerous rival is her husband's secretary? A group of us were discussing this matter and we would like to have your opinion on it.

SIX MARRIED WOMEN
Answer: No. Certainly not. I know that many women are inordinately jealous of the girls with whom their husbands work and that they look with suspicious eyes upon any stenographer who is not 70 years old. Also, that the average wife mistrusts her husband, who has a good-looking secretary, as spending his time telling her how beautiful and wonderful she is, and how she is the only one who ever understands him.

But this is all nonsense. In reality, the man who holds his own in business in these days of fierce competition has neither time nor inclination for love-making during office hours. He is chasing dollars, and he looks upon his female employees as he does his male employees, simply as a means to an end.

Natural Fear
Of course, it is natural for wives to imagine that their husbands are so fascinating that no girl could resist them, and that every young woman plotting to steal their husbands are all wrong. Nine times out of ten, to the young girl her boss is nothing but a fat, bald-headed man, who is fussy and critical and has no more allure for her than an office dog, and she thinks God she isn't married to him and that she doesn't have to stand him except during office hours.

However, sometimes a man does fall in love with the girl in his office, and sometimes the girl is a home-wrecker. But sentimental affairs between a married man and a girl happen out of the office as well as in it. At any rate, it behooves every wife to put on her good looks and keep on her good behavior so that her husband shall not institute an individual quarrel between a sloppy, nagging wife and the snappy, young business woman with whom he works.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My wife is a fine woman in every way, except for her disposition, which is terrible. She spends most of her time finding fault with everything I do, and she is sarcastic and criticizes everything I do or say. I have tried to please her in every way, but so far have failed.

A WORRIED HUSBAND
Answer: I suppose a mean disposition is more a result of a bad upbringing, but most of it is just selfishness and cruelty and a desire to have one's own way. People give in to those who have mean dispositions because it is easier legislative machinery for a quick drive to write into law major parts of his economic program aimed at 60,000,000 jobs and continued production peaks.

But Democrats appeared far from certain new price controls would be wise, even on the selective and standby basis called for by Mr. Truman.

And a noisy bi-partisan protest came from some farm state lawmakers over the endorsement by the president's economic advisers of flexible farm price supports, which might permit declines in price floors next year.

They said the president himself is committed to "full parity" for farmers.

Chairman Maybank (D-SC) of the senate banking committee proposed a far-flung inquiry into middle-man operations — to find out what causes the wide spread between what a producer receives and what a consumer pays.

He told reporters he wants to know why, for instance, cotton print cloth at the mills is below 1948 OPA ceilings yet "the consumer is paying a hell of a price."

Maybank said "I don't think another OPA is the answer," but he added that "some stand-by controls may be necessary."

Senator Sparkman (D-Ala.) said that because some prices "have begun to wobble" he had hoped Truman would not find it necessary to ask for controls. But he indicated that if the need can be shown he will go along with the president.

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

Chicago, Jan. 8 — (AP) — A St. Louis advertising firm has pulled the biggest coup of the season on the high-bidding pro football market by luring Jimmy Conzelmann out of his Chicago Cardinal coaching job and into the business world. It was done without much effort, since the irrepressible 49-year-old coach in his letter of resignation said he decided to get out of football and settle down to a more normal family life.

As an account executive for the P. A. Advertising Company his off-the-job personality, which has made him one of sports most colorful figures, will come in handy. For two years he has worked for the firm on off seasons.

It is true that the House Committee on un-American activities is publicly getting out of control at times, and it is true that some citizens, most of all those who have been embarrassed, disgraced and/or incriminated by its noisy disclosures. All statesmen, even including some members of the committee, agree that there is a strong tendency to spruce up to shake back noble names and scowl or smile, as the individual preference may be, when moves are about to be made of dramatic moments in proceedings.

When the committee was setting the stage for the "hostile" Hollywood political trash a little more than a year ago, one of the members did me the honor of consulting me as an authority on public relations, or perhaps popular psychology, advised him to bar the movie, newspaper, radio and loudspeakers absolutely.

They were thinking of calling Charlie Chaplin and I warned my friend that he might make monkeys of them by walking onto the set in his low-comedy pants, hat and cane. That worried them and they decided to put him in deep freeze.

I think the present would be a much better time than that occasion when the hams jostled for top-lines and pictures until Danny Kaye picked up a nail in his rep- ertory, thought an initial story telling how he got out of some draft, how he deferred out of it because he disclosed a certain attitude. Mr. Kaye flattered like a wounded buzzard, and other vicarious heroes of the screen, and the foul aggressors were overwhelmed with bashfulness right away.

I think that if the committee were to call Chaplin now and he tried to get funny he would die the death of a dog because psychology has swung to the committee.

After the Hollywood show was done, my friend was a little apologetic. He said some of the brothers desired the maximum publicity in order that the alarm should be citizen enough all the channels of propaganda.

That is a valid excuse. Why not? And the fact that the statesmen are human and, furthermore, are politicians and thus require publicity to get re-elected is supererogation. This is a valid excuse.

This appetite is a part of the apparatus of vanity. Even mirrors are organs of publicity and there is this to be said for the female race, unblushing and honest about their vanity whereas the bucks pretend to have none of it. However, even craggy, ugly brutes who know they clatter milk and frighten bulldogs are reeking of it and John L. Lewis has exploited his ugliness with a vanity as active and apparent as Grable's.

I know you will not think that I am picking on my cousin Eleanor, as she sometimes seems to do, when I say that actually the United States and the world have had to endure much because of her vanity. Whether that has been for better or for worse I will not argue now. But for reference I point back to the incident in her story of her life in which she relates that, as a child, being checked around in a water container at school by her relatives as they might have parked an inconvenient pooch in boarding kennels, she announced that she had been allowed in a French clacker or penny cart, and that she was a princess.

Another little girl had actually swallowed a clacker and had been almost dissolved in sympathy. My cousin, Eleanor, thought that it would work for her, too. She felt unappreciated and that was plagiarism, of course, although I am not asking you to take a serious view of it because, after all, she was just a little girl. Anyway, she didn't get away with it and she was punished for this childish sensationalism.

That career of hers, which has rolled up greater piles of clippings in the morgues than you will find in the name of any other citizen of the city, has been the direct product of her vanity. You cannot point to one single unqualified achievement to her credit. Think of that! Not one act of public service stands to the name of the woman who has been so much loved and honored by so many people.

Mr. Truman's selection of public life. He made his through his senate committee which investigated graft and waste in war expenditures. But for that he would not have been nominated for vice president in 1944. Of course, President Roosevelt, who nobly gave his life that freedom might reign, actually could have nominated your postman under the beautiful democratic process which we all hold dear. I insist that he would not have nominated Senator Truman if Harry had not whipped up that publicity with his senate investigation.

It is ironic to find us journalists decrying the appetite for publicity evinced by members of the committee on un-American activities. Every reporter aspires to his byline so that the reader in the bus or the sport page as fast as the can may read that he was the author of the living column document which starts on page one and, after 30 lines, jumps back to page 12 where the byline is dropped. Vanity. Publicity. Columnists, too. I hate publicity but I enjoy writing a column and I wouldn't enjoy it if it didn't have my name over it but sometimes I pierce down my nose at the boy on the committee for knocking over chairs in the scuffle as the lights flicker on and the cameras start to run.

This love of publicity is so common that in the papers should know better than to belittle the real public service of the committee on un-American activities, merely to criticize the statesmen for their avidity. When we run a pretty baby contest, the most obvious and unlikely parents, grand parents and big brothers come grooping hopefully into the newspaper plant with snapshots. When they are printed these people buy several papers and treasure the clippings or send them around and gets a raise. Look at the society page, too, and guess how we happen to come up with all those pictures of pretty little debutantes and brides. Their mothers send them in. Some of the mothers even hire press agents to send them in.

Camden Downs Hope, Legion Cagers Edged

Coach Jack Hopkins' Bobcats found a hot team at Camden last night and lost by a 34 to 24 score. The Panthers, led by Phillips who loomed in 11 points, led at the halftime by a 18 to 13 edge.

Meanwhile at Arkadelphia Donaldson, a pre-juniors favorite, defeated Falmos 39 to 11 in the Henderson State Teachers College Tournament.

At the high school last night fans witnessed one of the best games of the year as North Heights' Economy Flames of Texarkana barely edged the Hope Legion 69 to 65. The game ended with the score knotted 63 to 63.

In the Hope-Camden contest Dale Hockett was high point for the Bobcats with 10. The contest was a close all the way until the last few minutes. Buddy Sutton fouled out in the third period and Hockett and Nix went out in the final period.

The Stewart's Jewellers Independent girls basketball team and the Robert's Rockets Independent boys team will meet the Cale Independent in a double-header Monday night in the Hope-High School gym. The first game starts at 7:30.

Porkers Meet Nation's Best Tonight

By CARL BELL
Little Rock, Jan. 8 — (AP) — The Arkansas Razorbacks will play their final non-conference basketball game of the season here tonight when they take on the Phillips 66 Oilers.

From here on out it'll be strictly Southwest Conference business, and that is likely to be easy by comparison.

Not that the Porkers are expected to win the championship. It's just that as the early season schedule they have had with the nation's finest teams. Their opponents for tonight, for instance, are the national AAU Champions last year made up of a major portion of the U. S. Olympic team.

Arkansas dropped its conference opener to Defending Champion Baylor Wednesday night by four field goals. Bill Gies, Gary Craig, Virginia Harrell, Carl Dalrymple Jr., Amelia, Mark and Sammie Cruse, Ann Davis, Julia Smith, Pam Daniel, Belvo Jo Langston, and Joda Friedman.

Mrs. Uel Chamberlain was hostess to members of the Wesleyan Service Guild of the First Methodist Church at her home on Tuesday afternoon.

Various games were enjoyed during the afternoon. The guests were given bouncing balls as favors. After the gifts were opened the guests were invited into the dining room. A beautifully decorated pink and white birthday cake with the inscription Happy Birthday Al J. on it was served with ice cream to James Ellis Stewart, Lathan Easterling, Ruth and James H. Gies, Bill Gies, Gary Craig, Virginia Harrell, Carl Dalrymple Jr., Amelia, Mark and Sammie Cruse, Ann Davis, Julia Smith, Pam Daniel, Belvo Jo Langston, and Joda Friedman.
